The Wheelock Conference

Dear Friends,

Each year, the Wheelock Conference brings together Dartmouth alumni, faculty, staff, students, and community members to explore important questions at the intersection of faith, reason, and purpose. In a culture that often pushes faith to the margins of life, we hope to provide a forum for the thoughtful integration of reason, community, and worship. We, the student organizers of the Wheelock Conference, believe that faith-based reasoning and dialogue are essential for forming open-minded individuals and preparing them to lead fulfilling and impactful lives.

This year, at our tenth annual Wheelock Conference, we will gather alumni and role models from across the world to dialogue with students, faculty, and community members about how the Christian worldview understands reconciliation and hope – as well as foster long-term mentorship relationships. In panel discussions, we will explore how faith-based reconciliation might integrate into our professional lives, artistic pursuits, and relationships with others. We will grapple with history – particularly the history of Dartmouth College – from a place of Christian hope, and we will discuss ways to grow together in charity towards our neighbors and to build bridges between communities.

We offer a very special thank you to our speakers, panelists, and moderators for sharing their insights; to the EWS Board of Trustees for their leadership and support; to Dartmouth College for welcoming us to use the Rockefeller Center; to Maple Street Catering for the wonderful food; to Prayer Letters for the printing; and to all those who helped behind the scenes with logistical coordination.

Blessings to all.

Margaret Cross D'19

Margaret Cross is a senior at Dartmouth double-majoring in Government and English. Outside of class, Margaret studies vocal performance and sings with the Dartmouth Glee Club. She manages the Aquinas House Women's Fellowship and in fall 2018, she founded the Breaking Bread dinner discussion series that brings together students, faculty, and alumni for conversations about faith and identity at the Wheelock House. After graduation, she hopes to pursue opportunities in writing, law, and/or academia.

Tyné Freeman D'17, MALS'19

Tyné is a vocalist, composer, and multi-instrumentalist. She has released several records, and has toured in the U.S. and internationally. Her most recent album, Bridges, was a finalist in the 2018 Independent Music Awards. She earned a music degree from Dartmouth College in 2017, and authored an ethnography exploring intercultural music collaboration. Tyné is currently completing her master's degree at Dartmouth, and preparing to record a new full album.

Andrea Jenkins D'20

Andrea Jenkins is a '20 at Dartmouth pursuing a degree in Computer Science. She is originally from Longview, Texas. At Dartmouth, she is the Vine and Worship Project Director with Christian Union, a Director with Camp Kesem, and was recently the House Manager of the Wheelock House. She is passionate about God, coding, and volunteer work. As House Manager, she processed reservations of the House as well as communicated with all undergraduate leaders and staff members that use the Wheelock House.

Micah Taylor D'21

Micah is a '21 at Dartmouth pursuing a degree in Engineering. He was born in Dallas, but he spent much of his life in Japan. He built the Eleazar Wheelock Society connections portal, which allows students and alumni to contact each other directly for mentorship and fellowship.

Jake Casale D'17, Alumni Coach

Jake works as a Business Analyst for TruDataRx, a company focused on bringing transparency and evidence-based savings to pharmacy by empowering employers to take control of their spend with clinical data. Before TruDataRx, Jake worked in public health research at The Dartmouth Institute for Health Policy and Clinical Practice. He graduated from Dartmouth in 2017 with a degree in psychology and additional studies in global health, human geography, and economic development. As a student, he served as Editor-in-Chief of the Dartmouth Apologia and held leadership positions in campus ministry, and spent several terms abroad working with grassroots community health non-profits in South Africa and Uganda. He is passionate about the intersection of data science, human-centered design, and health systems strengthening. Whenever he catches a moment of free time, you can find him learning new board games to share with friends and family, lost in a Biblical history/commentary, or plotting his renegade second career as a starving actor.

Bridging the Gap Between Worldview and Work

Moderator: Micah Taylor D'21

Panelists:

Catalina Gorla D'09, CEO of TruDataRx

David Stone D'79, Founder and CEO of First Rate

Louis Tucker D'95, CEO of Mission Sync, LLC

“Tell me, what is it you plan to do with your one wild and precious life?”
~Mary Oliver

Searching for meaningful work is nothing new, and Ms. Oliver’s words have inspired generations of readers to consider the weight of their vocational decisions. But this weight seems particularly burdensome for university students today. In the midst of picking majors, landing internships, and “finding your passion,” students must reconcile several competing influences while building concepts of work and purpose. Personal interest, practicality, social expectations, financial sustainability, where to live, that intangible sense of purpose – with so much to consider, it can be easy to lose sight of the question in favor of manufacturing the “right” answer. This interactive discussion between three alumni will center on how they have navigated these tensions in their own careers, and how worldview shapes the space between questions and answers.

The Work of Art: Creativity and Collaboration

Moderator: Tyné Freeman D'17, MALS'19

Panelists:

Evelynn Ellis, VP for Institutional Diversity & Equity

Sang Wook Nam, Lecturer, Tech Dir, Bregman Media Labs

In this panel, Evelynn Ellis and Sunny Nam discuss the role of music in their lives and at Dartmouth. We will consider the ways art can do the work of connecting communities and sustaining the soul. How can we use the arts to engage across cultural and racial divides and to build trust?

Moderator: Sara Holston D'17, EWS Board Member, Author

Panelists:

Annie McCune D'79, EWS Board Member

N. Bruce Duthu D'80, Samson Occom Professor of Native American Studies

“We must accept finite disappointment, but never lose infinite hope.”
~Martin Luther King, Jr.

How does the Christian worldview find hope in dark times and make sense of troubled histories? In this panel, we feature the voices of Dartmouth alumni Annie McCune, '79 and N. Bruce Duthu, '80 who will reflect on the College's history and share their stories of faith at Dartmouth as one of the first female students and as a native student, respectively.

Special Performance

X.ado (ZAH-doh) is Dartmouth College's co-ed, Christian a capella group. Our name has two parts: the Greek letter Chi is the first letter in Xristos which means Christ, and "ado" means "to sing for". Founded in 1992, we've spent 25 years sharing the good news of Christ through music. Our repertoire ranges from gospel to choral to pop, and our venues range from Dartmouth fraternities to churches to locations like Seattle, WA or Seoul, South Korea during our annual tour!

Lunch in Morrison Commons

Please join us for lunch! Lunch bags will be available in Morrison Commons for all attendees. Grab a healthy bag and enjoy a short break.

Closing Discussion

1:15pm - 2:00 pm
Hinman Forum

Closing Discussion: What Comes Next?

Facilitator: Jake Casale D'17, Business Analyst at TruDataRx

Please join us as the Wheelock Conference Team discusses the question, "What does it mean to be an agent of reconciliation, and how can we carry what we have learned back to the unique spaces we each occupy?" Discovering the answer to this question may not be easy, but it begins in supportive community – not isolation.

To close out the conference, we will take stock of our individual hopes and goals for reconciliation in our contexts. Then, we will learn from one another's experiences and share concrete suggestions for moving those hopes closer to reality. Everyone is strongly encouraged to participate in this short but powerful activity where we pull together what we have learned and imagine the next steps of the journey.

Michael Chen D'01, National Director for Training in the Coalition for Christian Outreach

The Reverend Michael S. Chen serves as the National Director for Training in the Coalition for Christian Outreach (CCO). Voted “most likely to be beamed up by aliens” in high school, he was an eccentric fellow who was getting all A’s but realized that he was flunking life. The mystery and beauty of a more compelling figure than himself set him on a new path. Recruited to play ice hockey at Dartmouth College, he discovered a passion for ministry, earned a degree in sociology, and attended Princeton Seminary for his Master of Divinity. He has lectured widely on the topics of Race in America, the sociological nature of the church, and has published articles in the Bavinck Review and European Journal of Theology.

Christena Cleveland D'03, Associate Professor of the Practice of Organizational Studies

Christena Cleveland, Ph.D. is a social psychologist, public theologian, author and professor at Duke University's Divinity School. She is the author of two books, most recently Power Trip: How Facing Inequality Sets You Free (Simon & Schuster, projected release: late 2019). Committed to leading both in the classroom and in the broader society, Christena writes regularly, speaks widely, and consults with organizations. She is also the founder and director of the Center for Justice + Renewal, a non-profit organization whose mission is to create a more equitable and inclusive world by nurturing skillful justice advocacy and the depth to act on it. Dr. Cleveland holds a Ph.D. in social psychology from the University of California Santa Barbara as well as an honorary doctorate from the Virginia Theological Seminary. An award-winning researcher and author, Christena leads a research team at Duke that is investigating self-compassion as a buffer to racial stress, and is currently working on her third book which examines the relationship among race, gender and cultural perceptions of the Divine. Dr. Cleveland is based in North Carolina where she lives with her spouse, Rev. Jim Dahlin.

Louis Tucker D'95, CEO of Mission Sync LLC

Louis Tucker is the CEO of Mission Sync LLC, a national security sector consulting firm focusing on the intelligence and special operations communities. He also serves as the President of the Foundation for Innovation and Discovery (FINND), a non-profit corporation that connects government personnel with commercial innovators, as well as hosts executive level forums designed to foster collaboration among CEOs, decision makers, and critical thinkers in the defense, intelligence and national security communities. Within the federal government, Louis advises several intelligence/defense principals and he sits on the advisory boards of several technology companies. From 2007 – early 2011 Louis served as the Republican Staff Director of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence (SSCI). As staff director, he led a team of legal, policy and intelligence professionals overseeing the $80B+ operations of the Intelligence Community and crafting landmark legislation like the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Amendments Act (FISAA) of 2008. Louis is a Navy Reserve Sea, Air, Land (SEAL) Commander who mobilized on active duty from May-November 2015, to serve as the senior Special Operations advisor in East Africa, and from June-December 2009, at the request of General Stanley McChrystal to serve on his Strategic Advisory Group and in Ambassador Karl Eichenberry's Interagency Provincial Affairs Office in Kabul, Afghanistan. Louis served from 1996-2003 on active duty as a Navy SEAL, from 2003-2004 as a Central Intelligence Agency officer overseas, and in 2005 as U.S. Senator Richard Shelby's Chief of Staff on Capitol Hill. He graduated from Dartmouth College in 1995 with a B.A. in History and earned a Master's of Science in Strategic Intelligence from the National Intelligence University in 2006. Louis learned the importance of timing when he formed an Internet start-up company in 1995-6 and unsuccessfully tried to convince businesses that the Internet could be used to sell their products; he was 18 months too early. Louis lives in Vienna, Virginia, with his wife Jane-Anne and their three sons.

EWS

ELEAZAR WHELLOCK SOCIETY
Faith • Reason • Vocation • Service

The Eleazar Wheelock Society is a non-profit organization that provides resources and environments for Dartmouth students, faculty, and alumni to elevate reason and academic rigor, promote development of robust ethical value systems, stimulate constructive discussion among faiths, and share Christian perspectives. EWS engages the personal, professional, and financial resources of Dartmouth alumni to foster relationships between alumni, current students, and campus ministries, partnering with Dartmouth College in its mission to prepare students for a lifetime of learning and responsible leadership.

The Dartmouth Apologia is a student-run journal of Christian thought which articulates Christian perspectives in the academic community. Founded in 2006, Apologia semiannually publishes articles written to promote dialogue and provide an apologetic for the Christian faith. The journal aims to stimulate discussion about the integration of faith and reason by being intellectually rigorous in its approach to religious ideas while bringing spiritual purpose to mainstream academic discourse. The Apologia holds the award for “Best Publication” at Dartmouth and has been mentioned in the Wall Street Journal for its innovative work.

The Association of Christian Tuck Students (ACTS) is a community of believers at the Tuck School of Business dedicated to sharing God’s love and encouraging its members. ACTS does this by providing opportunities for members of the Tuck community (of all faiths) to explore, renew, and/or deepen their Christian faith; creating fellowship groups to discuss the application of God’s word in business; and developing networks to help students grow in Christlikeness while at Tuck. ACTS hosts a weekly Bible study and dinner, and regularly organizes fellowship events open to the entire Tuck community.

The Wheelock Conference

We are delighted to announce the launch of a portal to help connect the Dartmouth generations around the exploration of faith, reason, vocation, and service.

A community of close to 1,000 Dartmouth students, alumni, and faculty, EWS believes in the importance of faith for whole-life formation. Our online portal makes it easy for you to join a network of those who:

- *Connect with Dartmouth students, alumni, and faculty across class years
- *Stay updated on campus events and gatherings in their region
- *Visit the Wheelock House in Hanover and connect with students
- *Form mentorship relationships with students around faith and vocation

Signing onto the portal is free, quick and easy. Copy this link into your web browser: <https://eleazarwheelock.org/> and join, providing any information about yourself you would like. You'll be able to search our database to find others with similar interests, receive inquiries from current students, and stay up to date on EWS events in Hanover and in your region.

Grateful to serve the Dartmouth community alongside you.
